Dear Friends,

What a year 2019 has been for Meals on Wheels of Central Maryland! With your support, we have been able to reach new bounds in the depth and breadth of services offered, the number of people and families we served, and the lives we’ve touched, far more than an Annual Report can hold.

Trying to pick just one story to tell is impossible, yet we have the satisfaction of knowing that we have made significant impact on the lives of thousands of aging adults, their families, and their communities. We could tell you about Israel who was an orphan at 14 years old, and at 77 found himself alone again trying to manage his diabetes and hypertension while recovering from a back injury. As a non-native speaker, it was difficult for Israel to understand his medication regimen and he could not afford to purchase supplies necessary to manage his chronic illness, that is, until he met his Meals on Wheels of Central Maryland Care Manager.

We could talk about how, because of our healthcare related collaboration projects, and our in-home service model, we have demonstrated that we can improve limited health literacy and change negative habits like medication hoarding and improper handling into improved medication management and better health outcomes.

We could discuss how small gestures such as securing needed equipment like shower chairs, or acquiring housewares such as air-conditioners, or personal medical supplies make a huge difference in someone’s life. We could highlight how special programs, like the HUBS program, help participants maintain their homes, maintain their mobility in their homes, and enhance their safety with home repairs and modifications.

You will hear stories like these in this report, but nothing says more about our work and the commitment it inspires than five year old Tysie who taught us a lot this year when she made a site visit to Meals on Wheels of Central Maryland in order to deliver her donation of $41.67 that she collected from her allowance in her ‘charity’ jar.

The stories here and in this report make a clear case for the direct and positive impact we have on the community. With a new ambitious strategic plan in place, FY20 should prove to be exciting. While there is much to do, there is also much to look forward to — we are energized and excited!

Thank you all, from the bottom of our hearts, for your support this year! Without you, who give so generously of your time, talent, and resources, none of this would be possible.
At Meals on Wheels of Central Maryland (MOWCM), we have an abundance of success stories to share about individuals who participate in our collaborative programs with health care institutions. Stories about people like Miss Deb, who was a ‘picky eater,’ and had fallen several times at home, landing her in the hospital. Since starting with the Together In Care program, Miss Deb reports that she hasn’t fallen once thanks to the grab bars MOWCM installed in her home, and she adds “This food is good!” Miss Deb’s triumph and the inspiring stories of so many others like her, reinforce our commitment to our mission. When we reflect on these triumphs, a deep and rich portrait of growth emerges in our story as we evolve to strengthen and maintain healthier communities.

Our growth has been strategic, and informed by our experience as well as national trends. At every step, our credibility has grown, and, today, innovative and sustainable enhancements have been incorporated into our operations.

In August, we began Year Three of the Care Coordination Demonstration Project (CCDP) in conjunction with the Center for Successful Aging (CSA) at MedStar Good Samaritan Hospital, and funded by the Leonard and Helen R. Stulman Foundation. The CCDP has succeeded on multiple levels, providing direct benefit to more than 125 clients, reducing hospitalizations, and proving to be sustainable thanks to the continued commitment of the CSA.

Applying what we learned from the demonstration project, we launched our Together in Care (T.I.C.) pilot project this year in cooperation with Johns Hopkins Bayview Medical Center and Meals on Wheels America, thanks to generous support from the Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation and the Next50 Initiative. Building on the demonstration project, T.I.C. added a daily client survey administered via handheld digital technology to record critical health data.
Our success has led to new and unique health collaborations with the West Baltimore Collaborative, St. Agnes Hospital, and the Baltimore City Health Department’s Aging and CARES services as well as St. Joseph’s Hospital and Upper Chesapeake in Harford County.

While across our organization, we have always understood the real impact of our work, it is through our healthcare pilot programs and collaborations that we are able to show the true value of our services to the patient, the health system and the community at large.

This work has garnered regional and national attention. Meals on Wheels of Central Maryland’s leadership presented and participated at conferences and in convenings to promote a greater awareness for the significance of nutrition and isolation among the Aging, and support a broad and lasting impact in the community.

According to Dr. Panagis Galiatsatos, the Medical Director and Lead Researcher for the Together In Care project, “This is what 21st century medicine should be.”

T.I.C. enrollee Deborah W. is an enthusiastic participant of the Together in Care program. She is seen here responding in detail to the questions from Care Manager, Ashlynn Delhagen.

Deborah W. is shown demonstrating the solidity of one of three grab bars placed in her home. These were determined to be needed after an initial survey of her home.
When Bertha recently greeted Meals on Wheels of Central Maryland (MOWCM) staff at her home, she was as welcoming as she was two years ago when we first met. At that time, she was pleased to support MOWCM and Meals on Wheels America (MOWA) in the project that chronicled the lives of our clients and established a visual narrative for our More than a meal™ services.

During our recent visit, one of her seven daughters, also named Bertha, joined us for the visit. As we talked, it was evident that the 97-year-old was doing well. Bertha has a supportive family where everyone contributes to her well-being in some way, including doing household chores, but Bertha relishes her independence and wants to remain in her home.

Bertha, a 97 year-old MOWCM client is seen here giving us a history of her life, raising 8 children alone, after the death of her husband in 1968. One of her doting daughters is seen behind her, she is also named Bertha.
Bertha has a good appetite and particularly enjoys fresh spinach and corn on the cob. Her daughter says, “She eats it as if it were going out of style.” She also admits to having a soft spot for chocolaty sweets and was delighted to find a small brownie as part of her Meals on Wheels delivered meal the day of our visit.

The collective effort of a family is often key to giving homebound individuals the opportunity to live independently in their homes. Bertha’s family is an excellent example. Bertha is surrounded by loving family members who check on her, help care for her home and carry out other daily living activities for her. However, even with her strong family support, Bertha is also an example of how a hot meal and a volunteer’s visit makes all the difference.

A few months ago, when a volunteer noticed that Bertha was not her usual self, the volunteer reported this observation to MOWCM’s Case Management team using our Client Concerns form, a traditional paper and pencil process. The team was then able to share the observation with Bertha’s daughter for further discussion with her doctor. The system worked as intended, but that didn’t stop us from trying to improve it.

Today, MOWCM uses technology to enhance our tried and true program, allowing for real time processing and rapid response. Adding modern technology to our unique and personal approach to service allow us to track changes in a client’s general health, appetite, state of mind, and response to their treatment and recuperative progress.

Advancements such as these reflect our commitment to our More than a meal™ approach to service, and our quest to continuously improve quality and efficiency. More importantly, it reflects our dedication to serving people like Bertha in the best way possible.

Unlike Bertha, some do not have family or friends close by to provide the safety net that is so important to their health and well-being. For them, Meals on Wheels of Central Maryland is the safety net, and for others like Bertha, it is the glue that holds the safety net in place.
Frederick is 69 years old and widowed. He lives alone in a mobile home in Perryman, a small, unincorporated community in southern Harford County. Frederick served in the United States Navy from 1969–1971, including a tour in Vietnam. He recalls fondly his time posted in Greece.

Today, as Frederick fights chronic lung disease and a debilitating spinal condition, he lives in the home he loves thanks to the home-delivered meals, support and companionship delivered by Meals on Wheels of Central Maryland. Frederick even receives food, through Kibble Connection, for his two dogs, Izzy and Max, who always seem to be seated on his lap when we visit.

When a severe roof leak was discovered in Frederick’s bedroom, forcing him to sleep on the couch, our Case Management team worked quickly to access funding through the Home Depot Helping Homebound Heroes Grant. This partnership with the Home Depot Foundation and Meals on Wheels America is designed to give Veterans the financial support and peace of mind often needed to remain living safely at home. Having honorably served his country for 3 years, Frederick was the perfect candidate for the program.

With money committed for the repair, our Case Management team contracted with a roofer on Frederick’s behalf and saw the project through from beginning to end to ensure it was completed and done well.

Though succinct, Frederick’s gratitude was heart felt, and inspiring. He said the roof made him feel safer.

“It made me feel a lot better that something was done that I couldn’t do myself. Thank You.”

We are honored to give back to Frederick and his fellow service men and women who have given so much to us.
In a 2017 survey conducted by Deloitte, 9 out of 10 working Americans believe that companies who sponsor volunteer activities create a better working environment for their employees. As corporate volunteerism becomes an increasingly essential part of the workplace, Meals on Wheels of Central Maryland (MOWCM) is the place to be. From the Lunch Bunch, to Kitchen Assistants, and to Grocery Shoppers, you will find the opportunity that works for you.

Our partner, PSA Insurance & Financial Services, Inc., knows this firsthand. Our relationship with PSA began a decade ago when they became a corporate sponsor. Over the past ten years, they have generously supported the MOWCM annual fundraiser, Night of a Million Meals, and hosted fundraising events themselves including the recent employee Trivia Night. Once they even played ‘Dunk the CEO’ at the employee picnic to benefit Meals on Wheels of Central Maryland.
Matt Werden, Employee Benefits Advisor at PSA and Lunch Bunch coordinator, became interested because of his grandmother. “I remember my grandmother was volunteering for Meals on Wheels when I was younger,” said Matt. Over 50 PSA Financial employees have volunteered since then.

Each month, PSA’s Lunch Bunch delivers two routes out of our Cockeysville distribution site, near their office building in Hunt Valley, allowing 2–3 employees to step away from their daily routines to volunteer during their lunch hour. To date, PSA has delivered well over 1,500 meals, and can always be counted on to fill-in for other volunteers at a moment’s notice.

PSA Financial already knows what many corporations are now learning: employee fulfillment is as important as the other benefits a workplace offers. PSA’s commitment to supporting their community not only enriches the Meals on Wheels program, it changes the lives of those they serve, and offers their employees a meaningful way to give back to their community.

Over a dozen corporations throughout Central Maryland have adopted Meals on Wheels of Central Maryland routes, delivering meals during their lunch hours as a part of our ‘Lunch Bunch’ program. By donating their lunch hours to serve those who depend on us for their daily meals, volunteers see the immediate impact of their work, and bond with their coworkers through a unique volunteer experience.

Thank you to the staff at PSA and to all of our Lunch Bunch volunteers!

Every day at Meals on Wheels of Central Maryland we witness philanthropy in its truest sense, good will to fellow members of the human race and the effort to promote human welfare. Dedicated volunteers give their time to deliver well-balanced, hot meals to homebound individuals, using their own vehicles, driving nearly 460,000 miles and spending over 63,000 hours visiting with those who are living alone and cut off from the social interaction that is fundamental to a healthy life.

Many also choose to express that same good will to fellow members of the human race with generous gifts essential to our daily operations that annually provide the 1.3 million meals to help our aging neighbors remain living independently in their homes.

It is not every day, however, that you meet the unique individual who embraces all of this and more.

Cedrick Johnson joined the Meals on Wheels of Central Maryland’s Board of Directors in 2012, and quickly recognized the critical role we play in the lives of those who are homebound. He noticed the uniqueness of each individual served and the power of their personal stories. For Cedrick, Meals on Wheels soon became a family affair. Johnson started gathering his family on school holidays to deliver meals to homebound individuals.
“The smiles on the faces of the people when you come through the door is truly the reward to me and my family,” Johnson said while delivering during the holidays last year. “When we deliver and visit with people, the kids learn to recognize the different walks of life in the world and see how their acts of philanthropy impact individuals and give them the opportunity to remain living in their homes independently.”

And, he did not stop there. This summer, Johnson brought his company Airport Design Consultants, Inc. (ADCI) into the mix to bake cookies, an occasional but popular treat for our participants. At ADCI, where Johnson serves as co-founder and president, the volunteer work with MOWCM set a company culture of philanthropy that was extended by becoming a sponsor of our annual fundraising event, Night of a Million Meals.

The joy of philanthropy is heard in Johnson’s words when he speaks of his personal commitment to the work of MOWCM, “Each dollar I give is rewarding for me because it is a dollar that will help someone else. Having served on the Board of Directors, I know every dollar is used efficiently, and goes back into the community. That means a lot to me.”

In its truest sense, philanthropy is good will to fellow members of the human race and the effort to promote human welfare. Cedrick Johnson is a true philanthropist.
Cedrick with family, friends and colleagues bring joy to many homebound individuals through meal delivery, visits and special cookies baked with love.
